Presentation

In September, 1961, the Publications Branch of the Department of Public Printing and Stationery issued for distribution to libraries an "Outline of classification for Government Publications".<sup>1</sup> Since then, the outgrowing number of Canadian Federal Publications and the numerous changes carried out in the "Executive" have made this edition outdated and inadequate. The pressing demand for a more complete and up-to-date scheme encouraged us in compiling this loose-leaf edition.

As a system, a classification scheme is never complete and always subject to a certain number of modifications. That is why the loose-leaf book form seems to be more appropriate and when necessary, revised or additional pages will be prepared to bring the classification up-to-date.

Following the pattern adopted for the monthly and annual catalogues, this revised edition is divided into English and French sections. The latter being a scheme of the bilingual publications or those totally published in French and not a literal translation of all the English titles of the first part.

So, as now developped, this system should provide all depository and interested libraries with enough information as to how to shelve Canadian Federal documents in a rational and "easy to reach" arrangement.

Any comments on this classification system and all constructive suggestions for future improvement will be greatly appreciated and taken into consideration.

Classification system

In 1953, a special scheme of classification by Canadian Federal Government corporate bodies was evolved for the Publications Branch of the Department of Public Printing and Stationery to speed up distribution and storage of publications. The system was developed in the Documents Library specifically to give a call number for each publication in stock. Those numbers are also used to identify titles listed in the Daily Checklist, Monthly, Annual and Sectional Catalogues, selected title bulletins and promotional material issued by this Department.

The system is alpha-numeric. Capital letters are used for the main classes which are listed under sections 3 and 4 of the work, and arabic numerals are used for the Divisions under the main classes and for the book number. The capital letter "F" added at the end of the catalogue number means the publication is in French Language.

In 1952, when the main classes were chosen, a certain number of class and sub-class symbols were taken from the first letter of the key work in the official designation of a department ("C" for Commerce). A small case letter was added to the first letter when it was necessary ("Ci" for Citizenship) to differentiate one Department from another if their key-word had the same first letter. Two Capital letters were used for independent or semi-independent agencies ("CS" for Commerce-Dominion Bureau of Statistics). In practice, the alphabetical order is now used in the P. P. & S. stores and in the Documents
